HEYWOOD'S TELEGRAM TO THE WEBER CLUB.

A. R. Heywood telegraphs from Washington that the Interstate Commerce Commission has seen sufficient merit in the charges of discrimination made by Ogden against the Oregon Short Line to warrant a hearing to be held later.

The charges made by Ogden, briefly stated, are these:

Salt Lake City, twice a year, is granted special rates of one fare for the round trip covering nearly all the intermountain country. Ogden, having applied for a similar rate once a year, has been denied that privilege.

Inasmuch as railroads make or unmake whole communities, even states, by granting favorable or unfavorable rates, Ogden in this contest is resisting a discrimination which tends to destroy this city, to the advantage and great advancement of Salt Lake.

This question touches one of the most important functions of the Interstate Commerce Commission, that of stepping in and halting the crushing power of a railroad directed against the welfare of a community.

Salt Lake and Ogden are rivals in this territory, and any discrimination intended to build up Salt Lake and tear down Ogden within this field of commercial activity must, if tolerated, result in disaster to Ogden. A city the size of Ogden can not successfully resist such a discrimination, and here the wisdom of our legislators in national deliberation has shown itself in protecting the weak against the strong by enacting and making possible through a commission the enforcement of a law which declares that no railroad engaged in interstate traffic shall unfairly deal with any locality.

Twice a year, in spring and fall, Salt Lake is granted a special rate which Ogden has been unable to obtain. Twice a year covers the marketing season of merchants and non-merchants, and while Salt Lake continues to enjoy that advantage, what are Ogden's chances of competing successfully with Salt Lake?

It is unfair on the part of the Oregon Short Line to retard the progress of this city, to the advantage of Salt Lake, and we believe that the Interstate Commerce Commission, when they are presented with the facts, will not hesitate to order the Oregon Short Line to live up to the letter of the law which declares against an injustice so indefensible.

WHAT HARRIMAN SAID TO THE NEWSPAPER MEN.

E. H. Harriman, before departing for Europe, met twenty-five newspaper men and answered their questions. Among the questions were the following of local application:

Asked what his intentions were toward the Gould lines, he said:

"I have no intention of going into the Missouri Pacific board. Mr. Gould was kind enough to say in a public statement that he would be glad to work with him, but I do not think it would be a good thing for either his system or mine. I do desire, however, to help him, for it is better for all railroads to have the general condition good."

This may be accepted as a reply to the report that Mr. Harriman will absorb the Western Pacific, yet there is room for doubt as to an entire absence of desire on the part of the great railroad man to hold a complete mastery over the great central route to California.

Speaking of his traffic agreement with James J. Hill, whereby the two railroad interests are to jointly use a double track into Seattle, Mr. Harriman remarked that it was better for all concerned to have one double track road instead of two or three single track roads. The double track road is more efficient and can serve the public better than four single track roads.

"Will it tend to lessen the cost to the shipper?"

"I do not know that it will in actual rates, but it will give the public better service for the same rates, which is the same thing."

"Are you going to build any more lines in the west?"

"I do not know. The agreement does not mean that we shall stop construction. We shall build whenever it is necessary to do so."

If the Harriman and Hill agreement is a broad one, it may operate to exclude the Burlington from this territory.

The financial power of Mr. Harriman was impressively stated in this question and answer:

"It has been said that you are going to sell $150,000,000 of bonds in Europe."

"I wouldn't have to go out of this room to do that in half an hour," replied Mr. Harriman.

What do you think of the magic wand which waved can cause $150,000,000 to drop from a plum tree?

In this same interview Mr. Harriman declared that neither stock market nor legislation made prosperity, that the thing necessary to a country's greatness are bumper crops. To this statement a New York paper makes answer, saying:

"Yet in the long run the bounties of nature are not the essential foundation of a state. Greece built her time-defying monuments upon a bit of arid, sun-baked, rock-sown soil, most whose famous rivers run dry every summer. Holland made the finest state in Europe, and still maintains a fine one, on a small area of land with infinite labor from the sea. Venice placed a magnificent state on a few acres of mud-bank awash at high tide. The Scotch became a great people upon a soil with few advantages of climate. The Germans are making a splendid nation upon a not very fertile plain sloping toward the North sea."

"What have Brazil's or Siberia's natural resources done for them? What did Japan's, until the new national spirit brought a mental awakening? For a hundred years the true contrast between Canada and the United States has not been between natural advantages so much as between a land ruled stupidly under kings and one of freedom. And Canada is doing better of late, not because her resources are better known, but because stupidity and absolutism have been replaced by popular rule and a true national feeling."

"The important things, the things that make a nation great, are the courage, the intelligence, the virtue of its people and the justice of its government. If monopoly is permitted to crush individual effort, if there is one law for the rich and another for the poor, if legal subtleties and resources of delay entangle the 'square deal,' if legislatures continually enact privileges for the few at the cost of the many, not all the bounties of nature, were they ten times multiplied, would save the public from disaster."

HOUSEHOLDERS ADVISED REGARDING FIRE.

Chief Glor of the Salt Lake Fire department offers timely suggestions on the subject of fire precautions which, if followed, would no doubt greatly diminish the number of fires in the country. There is altogether too much carelessness on the part of the people

ENTERTAINMENT FOR OLD FOLKS OF UTAH

Salt Lake City, June 5.—Arrangements are being completed for the entertainment of the old folks of the state on June 29, in a way that will make it the most notable summer gathering of the veterans which has ever taken place. It has now been definitely decided that the principal items on the program of the day's entertainment will be an automobile ride over the town, a banquet in the Temple grounds, and an organ recital in the great tabernacle.

The Oregon Short Line and the Denver & Rio Grande railroads have agreed to have the special trains conveying the people from points in all northern and southern points, meet in this city at 10 o'clock on the morning of the 29th. All who are 70 years old or over may participate in this free ride to Salt Lake.

On their arrival at Salt Lake City they will be met by the reception committee of the Old Folks, consisting of B. F. Grant and Bishop Heber C. Iverson. This committee will in the meantime confer with the officers of the Salt Lake Automobile club, with the view of securing the necessary automobiles to take all the visiting old folks for an automobile ride over the city. This parade will take in the principal streets of the city, including either a ride to Twelfth East on Second South and back on East South Temple, or a counter march on the latter street. The procession of automobiles will be filled with gray-haired veterans whose best vehicle in the days by gone was often a buckboard, or still more often an ordinary farm wagon, and who have the opportunity, no doubt, for the first time of trying the luxury of the modern speed annihilator.

At the head of the column will be a good band, which will cheer the hearts of the aged with some of the songs mother used to sing, and stationed at various points along the route will be other bands, which will give them a cheerful note in passing.

Each of the 2,000 guests, who are expected to be present, will be given a flag for the occasion.

NATIONAL IRRIGATION CONGRESS.

The immensity of the reclamation of arid lands operations on the part of the United States government is quite beyond the knowledge of the average citizen. The reclamation plan is still in its infancy, but wonderful results have already been accomplished. Ogden holds an enviable place in the history of the great scheme, it having been the meeting place of the Irrigation Congress at its inception and Ogden men have had much to do with it since that time. The congress this year will be held at Spokane, Washington, August 9-14. In speaking of the magnitude and accomplishments of the national reclamation operations, R. Insinger, chairman of the board of control of the Irrigation Congress, says:

"The national reclamation act was passed in 1902. At that time there were in the government's name, in the 16 states affected, 600,000,000 acres of arid land, of which it was estimated possible to reclaim sufficient to support 50,000,000 people. By 1911 the reclamation service will have reclaimed nearly 2,000,000 acres, at an estimated cost of $70,000,000. There are 40,000,000 acres of arid lands susceptible to reclamation by irrigation. The construction cost of the reclamation works is returned to the government from the sale of land, the proceeds to be again used in furthering irrigation development. Irrigation is making a garden spot and an empire of the 'Great American Desert,' and the work of the irrigation congress is yet in its infancy."

George E. Barstow, of Barstow, Texas, is president of the congress; B. A. Fowler, Phoenix, Arizona, secretary; R. Insinger, of Spokane, chairman of the board of control; and Arthur Hooker, Spokane, secretary of the board of control.

DYNAMITES HOME LANDS IN ETERNITY

Oregon City, Ore., June 5.—In a fit of insanity today, at Marquam, twenty miles south of this city, Bert Garrett placed a charge of dynamite in the kitchen of his house and blew himself and his wife and daughter, aged five, into eternity.

Another daughter, Villa, aged 15 years, who was in the upper portion of the house, was perhaps fatally injured. The tragedy occurred while Mrs. Garrett and her little daughter, Beulah, were in the kitchen preparing breakfast. The little girl was instantly killed, as was Garrett, who was blown thirty feet from the house against a tree, almost tearing off his head. The force of the explosion was so great that Garrett's body was blown twenty feet beyond the tree. Mrs. Garrett was so badly injured that she died in an hour. The force of the explosion was felt for a great distance. Garrett had acted strangely of late, and had inquired the quickest means of self-destruction, but never intimated that he intended to kill the members of his family.

Trains Were Crowded.—Southern Pacific train No. 3 was sent west in two sections yesterday and each train was crowded. Among those en route to the coast were nearly a hundred regular soldiers and 68 people attached to the International Opera company.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.—"If men had four feet like horses, look at the shoes we would have to make. Yes, and if they kicked like mules, who would want to shoe 'em?"

MINING NEWS OF UTAH

And Other Western States

TINTIC'S ENORMOUS SHIPMENTS OF ORE.

Salt Lake City, June 5.—The shipments out of the Tintic district during the past week ending Friday night amounted to 219 cars of ore. Of this number ninety-six were fifty-ton cars, but many of them undoubtedly carried larger loads than this, and 123 cars of twenty tons capacity. This, with a little figuring, would soon show to persons interested that this Utah camp is one of the richest in the world. There has never been a real failure in the district, and countless thousands have been taken out.

With the present figures for the week it will be seen that, figuring ore at $50 a ton—which is far below the general average—$363,000 worth of ore was taken out of the district this week. It is more than probable that the shipments were in the neighborhood of $500,000. It can be safely said that there are greater deposits of horn silver in the Tintic camp than any place in the world.

Taking these same figures, the present rate of output of the district is better than $18,776,000 a year. A true report of the amount of ore from the district would be an eye-opener to most people. The actual value of ores would be closer to $25,000,000 each year.

There are a large number of mines that are working right along at the camp and nothing is ever heard of their output or the dividends that are paid. They are close corporations. All their business is transacted among a few and no definite statement was ever given out by them.

The following are the detailed figures of the work in the district during the week:

|   |    |
|---|----|
| Tintic smelter receipts, small cars:  |    |
| Colorado  | 21 |
| Beck Tunnel   | 21 |

| Lower Mammoth   | 1  |
| Victor Consolidated   | 1  |
| Horn Silver of Frisco   | 14 |
| Day mine of Ploche  | 10 |
| The camp's output included all the cars mentioned, except those designated, and the following large cars: |    |

VIGOROUS PROTEST AGAINST JORDAN

PRESIDENT A. H. LUND LEAVES FOR EUROPE

Salt Lake, June 5.—President Andrew H. Lund, accompanied by Mrs. Lund and their daughter, Eva, leaves at 6 o'clock this evening for Europe. They will visit most of the European capitals and a number of conferences of the church, and also the birthplace of President Lund, in Aalborg, Denmark. From Salt Lake they will go to Illinois and Boston, in both of which places a short stay will be made for the purpose of visiting relatives. The party will then leave Montreal on the Dominion liner Laurentic, June 19. On their arrival at Liverpool they will go straight on to Denmark. While there they will visit the national exposition at Aarhus attending on the Fourth of July, which has been set aside as American day by the exposition managers. President Lund will also visit the Swedish and Norwegian conferences of the church, accompanied by President Andrew Jensen. He then expects to return to Copenhagen, and later journey homeward through Germany and France.

Netherlands Saints Conference.—The Netherlands Saints' yearly conference will be held in the Ogden Tabernacle at 10 a. m. and in the Weber Academy at 2:30 p. m. and 6:00 p. m. June 6th.

San Francisco, June 5.—Ambassador Jusserand, Mayor Taylor and about 2,000 members of the local French colony who attended a reception to the Ambassador and Madame Jusserand last night, entered vigorous protests to the statements made by David Starr Jordan of Stanford university, in a recent speech at Bryn Mawr college, that France was a decadent nation.

"In the face of what that nation is doing and has done in art, letters and finance," said the mayor, "a man who makes such a statement conclusively proves that he does not know what he is talking about."

M. Jusserand said: "The nation that can produce a Pasteur, that leads the world in the sciences, that first developed the submarine and that ranks first in the navigation of the air, cannot by any stretch of circumstances be termed a decadent nation."

Fund For New Hymn Books.—The evening audience at the Congregational church have increased to such an extent that a large number of new hymn books are necessary. To secure the funds, the ladies have arranged with Miss Rosalie Holberg, who has but lately come from Washington, D. C., to give a recital at the church on June 8th.
